

Students and Instructors:

Many of the books placed on Reserve in the library are available on Redshelf.

Redshelf is one of the digital platforms working with publishers to provide free textbook access and it is very simple to use.

For Redshelf access, visit RedShelf's login page for RedShelf Responds. Students must create an account with their institutional (cookman.edu) email address.

Once the e-mailed is confirmed, students can sign in and search for books by title, ISBN, or author through the borrow your text search box.

Once the title is located, click on details for the title desired and look for the ADD TO MY SHELF option. That will open a read now option – and also put the book on your “shelf” to return to again.

After you have located your book, you will be sent a confirmation notice about the rental.

The message will read, “Thanks for your purchase from RedShelf Responds! The following materials have been added to your library at studentresponse.redshelf.com.”

To access your materials proceed to studentresponse.redshelf.com and log in with your account information and navigate to My Shelf:

If you have any questions or need assistance with your course materials, check out the RedShelf Responds Solve knowledge base.
